

CAPT. BARTLETT LOST IN ARCTIC

Stefansson's Navigator. It Is Feared, May Never Be Found.

EXPLORER SAFE ASHORE

Is at Point Barrow With
the Karluk.

HINT OF QUARREL SEEN

Leader's Explanation of Trip to Land Stirrs Suspicion
Among Many.

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 18.—Capt. Robert Bartlett, commander of the Canadian exploring vessel Karluk, the man who navigated Peary in his successful expedition to the North Pole, and his crew and a number of scientists, who joined the Stefansson expedition, have disappeared in the Arctic and it is feared they will never be seen again.

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the leader of the expedition, with Bert McConnell and several others, with whom he left the ship shortly before it was carried into the outside ice, are safe ashore at Point Barrow.

This is the news brought to Seattle this morning by Capt. Louis L. Lane of the Polar Bear, who, with Eben Draper, son of ex-Governor Draper of Massachusetts, Dunbar Lockwood and Will E. Hudson, rushed from the shores of the Arctic to Valdez and then came to Seattle by the steamship Northwestern.

Hundred Ships Lost.

"Nobody can say for certain that the Karluk is lost," said Lane, "but of more than 100 ships that have been carried into the outside ice from Point Barrow only one, the whaler Navard, was ever picked up. From the others never a word was heard, nor was ever one of the crews reported."

"The Karluk was anchored away on shore when the big blow came in September. Others who knew better the treachery of this coast kept their ships close to the ice of the land. The Karluk was carried into the outside ice, and there, in the opinion of every whaler and every native on the Arctic coast, will she find her final resting place. The vessel never has been seen since."

"Charles, an Eskimo boy, who was going down to Barrow to meet Stefansson, saw the smoke of the vessel eleven days after she disappeared. He judged she was then thirty-five miles off shore. He made up his mind that he never would see that ship again and returned to Herschel Island."

"In all the history of Arctic whaling the Navard is the only ship after being carried away in the ice, and she was not caught in what is known as the 'out-side flow.' Her crew left her in two parties, and some men of each party were lost. The few who stuck to the ship were saved."

Men May Have Quarrelled.

Just why Stefansson went ashore at Point Barrow seems to be a mystery to the men of the Arctic. Stefansson told those aboard the vessel that he came ashore to hunt, but he had been along that coast both on foot and in a small boat and he knew there was no hunting. He was accompanied by the men who had been his best friends. Some of the men from the North think that Stefansson and Bartlett had quarrelled, but nothing definitely is known.

Capt. R. D. Pederson, who was commander of the schooner Elvira, which was wrecked in the ice, who also reached Seattle this morning, as well as Olaf Swenson of the Barneson Stewart Company, owners of the whaler Belvedere, expressed the opinion that it is all over with the Karluk and that Bartlett and his crew never will be seen again.

Dr. Anderson, one of the men with Stefansson, whose boat, the Mary Sachs, was reported wrecked, is safe at Collinson Point, seventy miles west of where the Polar Bear is located for the winter. Both his wife, the Mary Sachs and the Alaska, are in good condition.

The Belvedere Is Safe.

Dr. Anderson's crew have good hopes for the winter. Capt. Lane spent four days with the crew of the Polar Bear. He reports the Belvedere safe in winter waters twelve miles east of the Polar Bear.

The scientists Dickson and Brooks, representing the Smithsonian Institution and Harvard University, together with a number of hunters and sportsmen from the East, accompanied the Polar Bear. In addition to those who returned with Capt. Lane this morning were Samuel Hixler, son of the eminent Boston surgeon, George Shibly and John Hurd.

The scientists and some of the hunters stayed in the North to spend the season. Capt. Lane says his ship is in a perfectly safe location and that everything is arranged well for the winter.

Secretary's Daughter-in-Law Reported to Be Seriously Ill.

Mrs. Francis H. McAdoo, daughter of Mrs. Isaac Emerson of Baltimore by her first marriage and daughter-in-law of the Secretary of the Treasury, is seriously ill in a hospital in this city. She is supposed to be in the Woman's Hospital in West 109th street. It was admitted there last evening that a Mrs. Francis McAdoo was there, but that no operation had been performed and the patient soon would leave the hospital. The attendant denied that the woman was the daughter-in-law of Secretary McAdoo.

News from Baltimore last night was that an operation would be performed on Mrs. McAdoo. Mrs. McAdoo was Ethel McCormack. She was married only a short time ago to young McAdoo, who was graduated from Princeton in 1910 and from Columbia last June.

INDIANAPOLIS BANKS TO LOSE UNION MONEY

Labor Men Resolve to Withdraw Funds Because of City's Hostile Attitude.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 18.—Officers of the International Labor union having headquarters in this city today adopted a resolution for removing all their deposits from the banks of this city because of the attitude of business men toward organized labor.

The officers signing the resolution and the unions they represent are as follows: Jacob Fisher, general secretary and treasurer; Journeymen Barbers International Union; James Kirby, general president; and Frank Duffy, general secretary. United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America; William Hudson, general secretary; Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union; A. P. Sovey, president; and James W. Dougherty, secretary. Brotherhood International Union; Daniel J. Tobin, president; and Thomas Hughes, secretary. International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stewards and Helpers.

John W. Hays, secretary and treasurer of the International Typographical Union, was also present at the meeting, but did not sign the resolution and left Indianapolis to confer with the president of the union before attaching his signature.

The resolutions set out that the business men have combined to destroy organized labor; that the money on deposit is borrowed by them to carry on their business; that the unions are thus furnishing the money for a fight against themselves and all local unions and internationals not represented at the meeting are exhorted to place their deposits in other cities.

All deposits are to be withdrawn immediately after January 1. Local bankers say that the deposits of the unions, local and national, probably aggregate $100,000, and that the banks have anticipated such action and are prepared for it. They do not express any regret at the threatened removal of the deposits.

WANTS U. S. RADIUM INSTITUTE.

Dr. Howard Kelly Says Government Should Enter Field.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 18.—Dr. Howard Kelly, a widely known Baltimore surgeon, is convinced that it is the imperative duty of the Federal Government for the public good to take possession at once of all radium bearing ore in this country. He declared today that an institution should be established where radium will be reduced from the ore and distributed to physicians for the treatment of cancer. Dr. Kelly and Alfred I. du Pont of Delaware are willing to surrender their leases of pitchblende mines in Colorado for the purpose, Dr. Kelly said.

"There is enough unmined radium in this country for the treatment of all the cancer cases in the country. At present the ore is mined and taken abroad, where the radium is extracted from it. It is because of this that radium costs so much. The cost of mining is not great. If the Government took the action I propose the radium treatment would be placed within reach of every one. I do not say, however, that radium will absolutely cure all cases of cancer, but it will prolong life and relieve suffering."

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 18.—Alfred I. du Pont said today in regard to the Colorado radium deposits:

"This matter is too big for one man. If Dr. Kelly should appear before a committee of Congress and show what had been accomplished in wiping out this disease I do not think there would be any hesitancy as to the Government taking over all the deposits."

FERRY RUNS DOWN MOTOR BOAT.

Two Men Missing, One Safe, in East River Accident.

The ferryboat Broadway of the Roosevelt ferry ran down last night the motorboat Ruth H. in the East River. Capt. John Kane, of the tug Henry Lee, pulled one of the passengers of the little boat out of the water. He was Nicholas Murphy, of 2400 Arthur avenue, The Bronx. He was treated at the Long Island College Hospital and went home.

Murphy told the police that there were two others in the motorboat with him, Charles Walters of 189 Hughes avenue, The Bronx, and Wren Buchanan of 2400 Arthur avenue. He said both were rescued.

Harbor A police precinct sent a boat out to pick up the disabled motor launch and learn something about the other men, but at midnight no word had been received.

HUERTA'S MEN LOOT AMERICANS' HOMES

Federal Troops at Tampico Are Reported to Have Raided
Foreign Colony.

RUN ON BANK STOPPED

Report That Bills Were Being
Discounted Relieves Situation.

Special Cable Dispatch to The Sun.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 18.—A trustworthy American who arrived from Tampico today reports that the Federalists looted the residential quarter of the foreign colony in that city, chiefly the houses occupied by Americans. They carried off everything they found that was portable. Americans who have arrived here lost everything they possessed in the Gulf port. Communication with Tampico from this city via San Luis Potosi has been cut since 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The American Smelting and Refining Company has decided to shut down its plant at Aguascalientes on January 1. This will mean the complete shutting down of all the company's plants throughout the republic. All the other plants have already been closed.

The Banco Central tapered off today. This was chiefly due to a false story published in a morning paper to the effect that the bank was cashing only a small percentage of the State bills offered and those at a discount.

Only Few Bills Cashed.

The Banco Central is not discounting the bills, but is really cashing only a few. This is done because the State banks and their clients do not want their bills to be cashed, preferring to keep them in circulation.

There was a meeting of bankers this morning under the chairmanship of the acting Secretary of Finance to consider the situation. At this conference the bankers proposed that the Banco Nacional receive all State bank notes and issue in return notes of the Banco Nacional. The plan is eventually to convert the issue of bank notes of the Banco Nacional to the exclusion of all others except the Banco de Londres y Mexico, which has a concession for the issue until 1925.

The Government has discovered that the Zapatistas are now operating under the direction of Gen. Carranza, who has agents here and in the Zapatista camp. Gen. Carranza has instructed the Zapatistas to concentrate all possible forces upon the capital for the purpose of diverting the Federal attention from his own operations in the north.

The Zapatistas are threatening Amecameca and Cuernavaca, respectively thirty and thirty-five miles from this city.

Two troop trains which left here for Cuernavaca today are stalled between Mexico and Miranda, eighteen miles from the capital. Fighting is going on there.

Federals Bottled Up.

A trustworthy person who has just arrived from Tampico reports that when he reached that city the day before the Federals entered it a messenger from Gen. Huerta, who was then operating in Chihuahua, arrived with an order to Gen. Villa to evacuate the city and allow the Federals to enter. The purpose of this move was to surround Tampico later on, Gen. Huerta in the meantime bringing up heavy artillery.

The rebels thereupon left Tampico, burning all the forage and provisions which they were unable to carry off and blowing up the railroad behind them. The Federals will be unable to find subsistence and are likely to be bottled up and starved into surrender. The rebel plan is to cut the line from Tampico to Saltillo via Parral, which is the only line left. The other railroads have been destroyed and grain is now growing on the roadsides.

The rebels, who are in strength north of Monterrey, can readily go to Tampico and cooperate with Gen. Huerta, who claims to be able to surround the city with 14,000 men.

Gen. Emiliano Zapata was almost captured at a ranch at Menapapa on the border of the States of Mexico and Oaxaca, eighteen miles from here, at 3 o'clock this morning. He had a bodyguard of 300 men. He was surprised by a Federal detachment from Toluca, and Zapata barely escaped after a hard fight.

Guadalupe de la Llave, a Federal brigadier-general, has revolted at Axochiapan, on the border of the States of Mexico and Puebla, and is said to be marching on Cuernavaca. He was in the first plot to kill President Madero. He was sent to prison but was liberated and joined the Diaz-Huerta combination.

A military plot was discovered at Aguascalientes today by the Governor of the State. He ordered the execution of six Federal officers.

The Government has sent a commission from the protocol section of the Ministry of Foreign Relations, headed by the introducer of ambassadors, to meet the Spanish cruiser, Empress Carlos, which will arrive at Vera Cruz to-morrow. The commission will extend the most cordial invitation to the captain and other officers of the warship to visit Mexico city and will offer them a special train on the part of the President and Government.

This honor was not extended to the naval officers of any other nation and is regarded as a play to cement Spain's friendship, Spain being the power which is angriest with the rebels for their mistreatment of Spaniards. Villa has alleged that the Spaniards are Huerta's friends.

BIG RANSOMS ARE PAID.

Twenty Families Pay $1,000 to $5,000 Before Leaving Chihuahua.

EL PASO, Tex., Dec. 18.—Wealthy Mexican families cannot get permission to leave Chihuahua without the payment of a ransom, according to passengers.

JACK FROST RIDES IN ON A GALE.

Thermometer Below Freezing at Midnight—May Go Lower.

A frosty northwester that came in gusts of forty mile force made folk on the streets last night believe that winter was getting ready to turn on his arctic currents. The forecast of Washington, fair and colder, surely will be realized to-day.

The mercury had fallen a degree below the freezing point at midnight last night, and it may be several degrees lower at sunrise this morning. In certain parts of Park Row, where the wind rattled windows after ricocheting from the walls of the high Broadway structures, its force seemed hurricane suggestive. There were the usual arctic funnels winding upward from the front of the Woolworth Building and making walking in the neighborhood uncomfortable for the pedestrians.

John Hicks, a carpenter, was blown from the roof of a house in Rockaway Park yesterday afternoon and received injuries from which he died. A strong gale was blowing off Jamaica Bay and his fellow workmen advised him not to go to the roof. He had reached the peak when a gust whirled him through the air.

BOY SCOUTS LEAD BLIND TO HEAR PEARY SPEAK

Earn Right to Untie Knots in Neckties by Good Turn to the Helpless.

One hundred and fifty Boy Scouts of America who gathered in the American Museum of Natural History last night were observed undoing knots in the lower end of their string neckties soon after their arrival there.

"How did that knot get there and why are you taking it out now?" asked a woman who was surprised at the sight.

"Every morning when we get up," replied one of the boys, "we put a knot in our ties to remind us that we must do a good turn during the day. When we do the good turn we untie the knots."

The scouts were entitled to undo the knots, for they had escorted to the museum seventy-five blind persons who wished to hear Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary tell of his experiences in finding the north pole. Except for the good turns of the scouts the blind would not have enjoyed the lecture.

Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn, president of the museum, had long been eager to arrange a lecture for the blind under the auspices of the Jonathan Thorpe Memorial Fund of $25,000. The idea came to him of getting the Boy Scouts to escort the blind, so he appealed to James L. West, chief executive of the Boy Scouts of America. Leonard Storer, committee clerk for Manhattan, and W. H. Holcombe, commissioner for Brooklyn. They found plenty of volunteers and two boys were assigned to each blind man. The blind came from New Jersey, Brooklyn, Long Island and The Bronx.

U. S. WILL FLASH "IT'S 1914."

Navy Wireless Plans World Greeting as New Year Dawns.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—New Year's greetings will be flashed to all the world by the United States navy at midnight on December 31. It was announced today that the naval observatory will send through the Arlington radio station time signals marking accurately the end of the old year and the beginning of the new. All mariners, shore stations and even amateurs within range of the Arlington station are invited to listen for the signals.

The signals will begin at 11:30 P. M. The last of the transmitting clock at the naval observatory will be automatically repeated by the Arlington station with the exception of the 29th, 50th, 56th, 57th, 58th and 59th seconds of each minute. In the 59th minute all beats after the 49th second will be omitted until midnight, which will be indicated by the beginning of a signal of about one second and one-third in duration.

For the information of those desiring to receive time signals it is announced that the wave length to be employed is 2,500 meters.

"PROTECT POOR AUTO DRIVERS."

So Says Judge in Freeing Man's Chauffeur, Who Hit Boy.

In discharging Patrick Kelly, chauffeur for Mitchell May, Secretary of State, who failed to stop after running down six-year-old Sidney Shimick of 2286 Bedford avenue, Brooklyn, Magistrate Nash in the Flatbush court yesterday intimated that his sympathies were all with the automobile driver who finds the street cluttered up with pedestrians and children playing.

"The accident," he said, "is a further evidence of the need of protecting automobile owners from careless use of the streets."

Young Shimick is now in Kings County Hospital with a fractured skull. Mrs. May was in the machine at the time.

FIG LEAF VS. HAREM SKIRT.

Former Won't Displace Latter, Assures a Government Scientist.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—There is no danger of fig leaves displacing harem skirts as the right thing in the wearing apparel of Dame Fashion, according to conclusions reached today at a meeting of the House Committee on Agriculture.

This question was discussed with solemnity by members and a serious scientist representing the Department of Agriculture. Dr. Taylor, chief of the bureau of plant industry, assured the committee that the Department frowns on fig leaves as a substitute for diaphanous and harem skirts.

Plant culture was under discussion, but a simple question caused members to digress.

"Do you propose to have fig leaves usurp the popularity of harem skirts?" asked Representative Shoup of Nebraska. "I hope the fig leaf is not going to be restored to its former usefulness," remarked Representative Hudley of Oregon. "Everybody chuckled and the committee returned to serious work."

WOMEN TRY TO BLOW UP HOLLOWAY JAIL

Suffragette Bombs Do Little Except Smash Hundreds of Windows Near By.

CLUE—ONE RED HAIR

Exhaustive Police Search Awaits
Little—Only One Militant in Prison.

Special Cable Dispatch to The Sun.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—An attempt to wreck part of the outer wall of Holloway jail with mines or bombs this evening resulted in failure, but hundreds of windows in neighboring houses were shattered.

The outrage was doubtless the work of militant suffragettes, but up to the present there is no clue as to the identity of the perpetrators. Mrs. Parkhurst was released from the jail yesterday and it is supposed the attempt was made in revenge for her treatment by the police.

About 5 o'clock residents of houses within a wide radius of the jail were startled by two tremendous explosions in quick succession which were accompanied by a crashing of glass in house windows. Then came a chorus of shouts, the blowing of police whistles and a rush of people toward the jail.

The site of the explosions was easily located. It was in the rear of a pair of houses numbered 10 and 12 Delmeys avenue, whose gardens stretch about a hundred feet toward the prison, from which they are separated by a dry moat 25 feet wide.

The police rushed through No. 10, which was occupied only by a caretaker. They then scaled the wall at the end of the garden and dropped into the moat. They soon found two holes at the base of the prison wall about a foot square and six inches deep. The wall, which is of brick, is very thick and was not pierced.

Fuses Fifty Feet Long.

Two fuses twisted with cotton, each fifty feet long, lay across the moat from the hole to a point where a dividing wall separates the end wall of the gardens of Nos. 10 and 12. No cans or other such articles, such as might have held powder, could be found. The theory is that powder or ammonite was laid at the base of the wall and covered with clay. There was a wire stretched along the top of the end wall and entangled in this, near the fuse, the police found a wisp of a woman's red hair.

The police questioned the occupants of the two houses, Nos. 10 and 12, and also searched the gardens. The caretaker and his wife were out when the explosions took place. Fragments of glass were buried into the bed of their two children, who were asleep, but the youngsters were not hurt.

The police subsequently made a close search of both houses. No. 12 is tenanted by a man named Bailey, who, as well as his wife is a noted sympathizer with the suffragettes. The house has been frequently used in signaling and sending suffragette prisoners in Holloway, who were usually kept in rooms facing the rear of the two houses.

Parley was absent at the time of the explosion, but returned during the search of the house. He said in a subsequent interview: "When I came home at 10 o'clock I found my house full of policemen and the rooms being searched and was told of the explosions which had occurred. I was immediately alarmed. I know absolutely nothing about the explosion. I did not protest against the action of the police in searching my home as I know it would be useless because my wife and myself are well known sympathizers with the suffragettes. Every room of the house was searched and some of my correspondence was examined."

Reasons for Explosion Unknown.

It is impossible as yet to say whether the explosion was intended as a serious attempt to wreck the wall of the jail or a mere "demonstration" by the militants. If it was the former it was poorly and ignorantly conceived. The damage to the wall was insignificant and the chief mischief was in the smashing of windows.

The most serious danger from any public thoughtfulness and the reason persons who had the time must have had access to it by way of some house on Delmeys avenue, which runs along the side of the prison. The damaged wall surrounded the prison yard and its breaching would have given access to the jail yard.

It is understood that there is only one suffragette now in Holloway jail, a member of the arson squad known as "Rachel Brown," whose real name is unknown. The suffragettes, who believe that a woman is being punished for being a woman because they are unable to learn the facts. This woman's case has been a stock subject for fluntings of the militants at recent meetings.

Corrosive substances were placed in a number of mail boxes at Reading to-night. A number of letters were destroyed. The outrage is charged to suffragettes.

Holloway jail faces on Camden road at its intersection with Parkhurst road, a short distance north of the Metropolitan market. It is in the section of London known as Holloway.

The daily average number of prisoners in the prison is 654. It is a jail for female prisoners of all classes committed in the counties of London, Middlesex and Bedford and parts of Essex, Surrey and Sussex.

Members of the Woman Suffrage party showed yesterday that they were thoroughly versed in household duties, when the caretaker of the headquarters at 48 East Thirty-fourth street left the marble hallway and stairs unscrubbed.

Nothing daunted Mrs. Kate Morris, Mrs. Mabel Russell and Miss Marjorie Cullen fell to with scrubbing brushes and soap.

They did a thorough piece of work, but by 10 o'clock they had their sleeves down, ready to receive callers—but they admitted a slight stiffness of the knees.
